1:05	SWDH Update	Sam (filling in for Emily)	Safe Teen Assessment Center (STAC) update Youth Crisis Work update SWDH received $1.5 million to stand-up a Safe Teen Assessment Center. There has been an advisory board assembled to support this work, and Savannah Swisher is the new Project Manager at SWDH leading out on these efforts. The RFP has not been yet released for the Youth Crisis Center, but SWDH is moving forward with identifying a location and working with partners to streamline the process. Sam provided an overview of the assessment center framework model, which aims to divert youth from child welfare and juvenile justice involvement. The model also encourages wrap around services as a continuum of care. The STAC model is viewed as an upstream intervention before law enforcement or child

1:20	Crisis Center Update	Adam, Lifeways	Lifeways Crisis Center Update August was very busy for the Crisis Center. The average intake was 6.68/ day, and total monthly intakes were 208. Adam is continuing his work with CITC and the Region 3 Division of Behavioral Health. He also attended a meeting that Nampa Family Justice Center facilitated to address a coordinated community response for elders experiencing homelessness/ abuse/ neglect. Adam is looking to implement some of the practices learned at the crisis center. On average, the crisis center is experiencing 5-6 individuals who are experiencing the MO. Chairman Aberasturi recommended reaching out to AAA for their senior services. Adam also reaches to APS when needed. Adam contributes the uptick in client census to the rollout of 988. The crisis center has seen a decrease in beginning weeks of September. He also thinks weather may have contributed to the increase in census. The crisis center is engaging with the new Optum Idaho Peer Navigator to help clients. This peer navigator is not located at the crisis center but meets the client in the community. Emily and Adam continue to work towards progress of medical clearance for individuals seeking higher level of care. The crisis center is participating in Caldwell Recovery Day on September 17th and is presenting at the CIT Training in Fruitland on September 22nd. Ongoing efforts will continue to address limitations around the 23 hours and 59 minutes length of stay at the crisis center, especially as SWDH explores this same limitation with a youth
