SWDH DIVISIONS AND SERVICES

Southwest District Health (SWDH) is organized into three main divisions, each responsible for a distinct range of services supporting the health and well-being of Idaho communities.

The Family and Clinic Services (FCS) division oversees family-centered programs such as WIC (Women, Infants, and Children), provides a variety of clinical health services, and delivers behavioral health support.

The Environmental and Community Health (ECH) division manages community facility inspections for food and childcare, guides land development and oversees water, septic, and underfill systems, coordinates the Public Health Emergency Preparedness Epidemiology Response (PHEPER), and leads outreach programs that promote community well-being.

District Operations (DO) ensures the smooth functioning of SWDH, handling administration, finance and procurement, organizational development, information technology, human resources, customer service, and the maintenance of facilities.

Together, these divisions enable SWDH to offer comprehensive and accessible public health services across the region that includes six counties, both rural and urban.

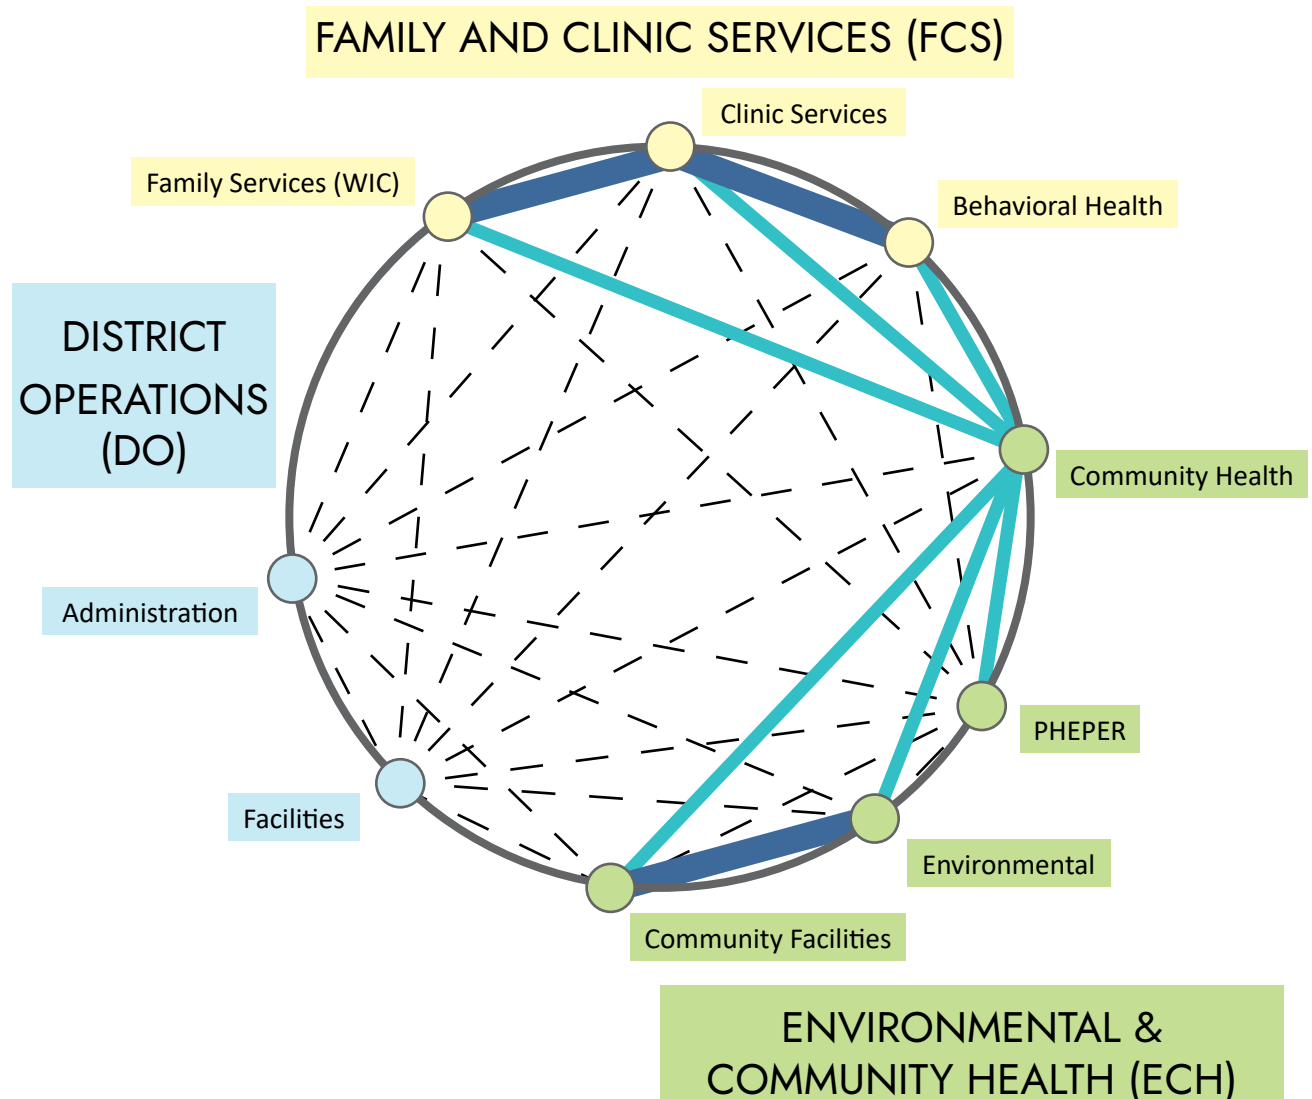

The Caldwell Office serves as the main office, but three additional full service satellite offices and four WIC-only offices span out across the 6 counties that SWDH is responsible for.

FULL SERVICE SATELLITE OFFICE ADJACENCY DIAGRAM

This diagram illustrates room adjacency within the building. The reception desk serves as the primary point of contact for visitors, directing them to their appropriate destinations. Community Health Outreach Rooms, such as conference rooms, do not require initial access through the reception area; they may function independently or operate beyond standard hours, separate from the services managed by the reception desk.
